Training.

Initially I trained at Greasepaint from April '09-July '09, where I learnt basic fashion hair and make-up.

I continued my study at London School of Media Make-up from January '10- April '10, under the tuition of BAFTA award winning Jeanne Richmond. I came away with a distinction, and gained skills in:

- Character and period hair and make-up, including wig fitting.
- Corrective and camouflage make-up.
- Body painting and airbrushing.
- Contemporary and fashion hair styling.
- Editorial make-up.
- Casualty, special effects and Prosthetics (including bald cap making).

EducationandPersonal.

Before I began my make-up training, I achieved A-D grade GCSE's at Gillotts School in Oxfordshire.

I worked as a waitress after school to save money for travelling throughout the French Alps, concentrating on competitive snowboarding. After a few too many injuries, I came home and became a qualified ITEC sports masseuse. I also worked as a personal assistant at a private music studio in Buckinghamshire.

I have always had a great appreciation for the glamour and sense of occasion a photograph or movie can evoke, and this is what has inspired me with my make-up work.

I feel my working experience so far has been invaluable towards developing my social skills, and how to conduct myself in a professional, calm and patient manner. I am confident in my craft and want only to do the best possible job I can.

So far I have been lucky enough to work with the legendary artists Marcus and Dinos Chapman, the beautiful Erin O'Connor, the incredible Rob Cable and award-winning photographer John Oakley amongst many others. My goal is to continue working alongside such talents in the industry, helping to further my skills and experience. I would relish any opportunity to show my book and go into greater detail about my passion for my work.
